FASHIONS ARRIVE

Designers Shape the Silhouette in Various Ways

Fortunately, the French houses have been in favor of all three silhouettes, so the choice rests with the individual, and no one having elected to appear either slender or slightly puffed out around the hips will be in any danger of not being correctly dressed. Certainly, the fashions are most accommodating, in so far as they allow one the choice of so many different styles.

The soft drapery in skirts is a feaure much in evidence among the new gowns. There are also some tunics, the lovers of this graceful style will be glad to know. Draping is one of the means of accomplishing the oval silhouette with the skirt narrowing down at the hem and plenty of fulness about the waist and hips.

The Width and Length of Skirts

There is no rule about the width or the length of skirts, for they vary according to the caprice of the designer. Some skirts are as narrow as a yard at the hem, while others are as wide with the lengths of skirts. While some reach the ankles, the shoe-top other models. Skirts for street wear are for the most part inclined to be narrow. In evening sowns, the puffed effect of skirts looped under to a narrower foundation is used to a great extent, and this same effect also appears here and there among the afternoon the more stylish it will be. Another form of decoration much in use is the heavy machine stitching applied either in rows or in fancy designs. This is such a simple trimming for women to ony that its popularity is assured. On woolen material, a heavy silk like that used for crocheting is used at the top of the machine with ordinary sewing silk at the bottom. The stitching should be as large as the machine will allow, and the needle must necessarily be very large. When this stitching is used on linen or heavy cotton fabrics. a heavy mercerized cotton is used in stead of silk.

The Revival of Foulard

As to materials, it is particularly lard, an ideal silk for spring and summer. It is used very freely, especially NEW YORK, April 12. in the dotted design so well known Paris fashions have begun to arrive Coin dots of all sizes and colors apcrepe meteor, chiffon and Georgette Enough of these models have come are the smart materials of the season safely through the perilous trip across for afternoon frocks, and the diaphanthe Atlantic to give us an idea of the ous tulles, nets and laces are used for Parisian decree as to what shall be the evening gown. A ribbon girdle supplies the color note in this dainty all-white frock. A narrow ribbon of the same color as the girdle holds in the soft gathered puff of the undersleeve at the wrists. Cut machine stitching is the finish used for the collar and vest, as well as the edges of the sleeves.

PROMINENT MEDICAL MEN SAY REGARDING IT

"I will utter what I believe to-day, If it should contradict all I said yesterday."

The thought in the foregoing quotation possibly contains the sentiment which dominated the minds of the individuals when they subscribe to the statements which follow:

"I am the son of a medical doctor and was educated for the medical profession. After nine years in the practice of medicine I discovered I had sugar diabetes. As a result I consulted a chiropractor. He fully restored me to health. I believe chiropractic to be the most efficacious and far-reach ing health mode extant."

EDWIN C. CALISBURG. Jackson, Mich.

"I am a licensed physician in the State of California. I have also taken chiropractic study. . believe chiropratic is here to stay." E. P. BAILEY, M. D.

957 W. 7th St., Los Angeles.

"I became interested in chiropractic through seeing a chiropractor take a number of badly afflicted people, pronounced incurable by medicine, and achieve results which seemed-like miracles to me.'

L. W. EDWARDS, M. D. 24th and Farnam, Omaha, Neb.

"The chiropractors come nearer to giving to suffering humanity the maximum of health and happiness obtainable through the practice of any health profession."

A. W. LITTRELL, M. D. 304 Conroy Bldg., San Antonio, Tex.

"I think chiropratic spinal therapy simply wonderful." W. A. FRANKLIN, M. D.

Magnolia, Ill.

"I believe chiropractic to be the most scientific method of adjusting the cause of disease."

U. A. LYLE, M. D. Logansport, Ind.

"Hurrah for chiropractic and for chiropractors who have solved the health problem."

W. A. BRAYMAN, M. D. Youngstown, O.

"Chiropractors obtain results I cannot obtain with medicine." E. G. RUTHERFORD, M. D.

Birmingham, Ala.

We have many like testimonals from men who know of the value of chiropractic spinal adjustments. About four hundred and fifty former medical doctors have abandoned medicine for the study and practice of chiropractic. The chiropractic schools of the country annually graduate about fifty medical doctors for the practice of this great drugless mode of adjusting the
